Mountaineer Foodbank to receive portion of latest CARES Act funding

Governor Jim Justice recently identified where most of the balance of funding allocated by the federal government through the CARES Act will go.

The state had to commit those funds before the end of the year or return them. Mountaineer Food Bank is in line for a large portion of that funding.

"We are truly grateful Governor Justice has seen and heard the needs we have in West Virginia and made the decision to utilize our federal dollars to help reduce hunger throughout the state," said Delegate Larry Pack, a member of the Food Insecurity Workgroup on the House of Delegates. "We know the need is dire, and these investments will go a long way in helping those people and groups doing immensely important work to feed our state's hungry."

Justice announced Thursday he will designate $7.25 million for food insecurity partners across the state, with $3 million of that going to food pantries and $2 million to Facing Hunger

Foodbank and Mountaineer Food Bank. Justice said additional dollars will go into upgrades at the West Virginia National Guard Rock Branch regional food distribution center, which will include a large-scale, combination cooler and freezer to allow for proper cold storage at the site. Justice also announced several Rescue Mission organizations each will receive $250,000.

The exact manner in which the funds will be utilized by Mountaineer Food Bank has not yet been announced.

Trees were full of debris from the tornadoes.

On December 10 tornadoes hit the state of Kentucky leaving devastation in its' path.

The death toll in the state has risen to 77, breaking a previous record from 1890 from storm related fatalities. Last week a team of nine members from the Gassaway Baptist

Legislative Update

By Delegate Brent Boggs
December 27, 2021

As I type this Sunday evening the day after Christmas, I'm thankful to have enjoyed the holiday with my family. While Jessica, Greg and Gavin were unable to fly home for Christmas, Colin drove up last week and had a great week at the farm and visiting with family. My mom and dad were especially thrilled with his unexpected visit. I hope everyone enjoyed a blessed and happy Christmas as we look forward to what the New Year brings later this week and throughout 2022.

With the deadline looming for the Governor to release the remainder of the CARES Act funding that would otherwise be returned to the federal government after December 31, the Governor announced last week he plans to designate $48 million for initiatives to train, recruit and retain nurses. This is part of a package that will bolster the new Glenville State College Nursing degree program and a couple of other schools offering nursing degrees in West Virginia. This is good news for GSC but even better news for healthcare facilities across West Virginia that are in dire need of additional registered nurses to meet the needs of West Virginia citizens.

Also, the Governor is sending $7.25 million for food insecurity partners across the state, with $3 million of that going to food pantries and $2 million to Mountaineer Food Bank and Facing Hunger Foodbank. Also, additional dollars will go into upgrades at the West Virginia National Guard Rock Branch regional food distribution center, which will include a large-scale, combination cooler and freezer to allow for proper cold storage at the site.

Members of the Food Insecurity Workgroup, of which I am a member, conducted a series of virtual meetings and in-person visits throughout the summer to hear from both food banks about food availability and distribution as well as presentations from several state agencies that administer feeding programs. Other workgroup meetings included presentations by non-governmental organizations familiar with the state's hunger issues, including the West Virginia Food and Farm Coalition, Turnrow Appalachian Farm Collective, Pantry Plus More, West Virginia Center for Budget and Policy and the WVU Food Justice Lab.

Additional funding was proposed by the Governor as follows:

- $22 million for a back-to-work initiative.
- $10 million in an emergency management crisis fund to go to our first responders
- $250,000 each to Union Mission in Charleston, Clarksburg Mission, Huntington City Mission, Martinsburg Union Rescue Mission and Bluefield Union Mission, as well as West Virginia Rescue Ministries in Fairmont and the Faith Mission Homeless Shelter in Hurricane.
- $6 million for the Salvation Army facility in Beckley
- $500,000 for Shepherd University to support its light therapy program.
- $3 million for remote work facilities through West Virginia University.
- $1.5 million in upgrades for the State Fair facility in Lewisburg.

•$2 million for Game Changers, which is a substance abuse prevention program in the schools.

•$2.7 million to cover ongoing costs in the Department of Health and Human Resources related to pandemic response.

•$1.3 million for a vaccine incentive program.

•$3.3 million for administrative costs related to the state's handling of the covid-19 pandemic.

•$15.2 million to be on hand for state agencies that might have unanticipated expenses related to the pandemic.

Clear a Path

By: Jeanette Riffle

That is exactly what we have to do after I get my story written. We didn't do our gift exchange until today, Sunday, the day after Christmas. The kids made it home from Michigan, on Christmas Eve and I knew they were tired from the trip so I didn't say anything. Then on Christmas day, I fixed a big farm breakfast and later on, we put together a ham dinner, so we were all tired and stuffed and really didn't have enough energy to get into all that excitement. Today, I took a picture of all the clutter of wrapping paper, boxes, bows and gifts everywhere, and it reminded me of Christmas at my parent's house. There would be close to thirty people there and sometimes more. By the time the grand children threw wrapping paper everywhere you had to clear a path to get up and walk. Mom would say, "Oh well, just so we can clear a path." She said the same thing when I would be over there clearing clutter and cleaning for her but I went right ahead anyhow and did the job right.

This is the time of year when bell ringers and other individuals are out collecting funds for different charities. The mail delivery every day includes many letters from organizations requesting funds, often including address labels, greeting cards, notebooks, and other useful items, hoping to open our hearts to consider helping their various charities.

This is the time of year that Adventists are also encouraged to go to our neighbors and tell them what we are doing worldwide to help those less fortunate than we, and ask folks to help. Adventists are encouraged to go door to door, especially during the Christmas season and collect donations for many missions of the world-wide Adventist church. Sometimes caroling is also included.

I was 16 when I became a Seventh-day Adventist and from then on until now, I worked either by door to door or caroling groups, or even mail, requesting dollars for the needs of many God's needy children. We used to go out in groups and in recent years, we had a loudspeaker hooked on top of a car to bring Christmas carols to different neighborhoods.

We would take different sections of the town. Then when we returned to the church, there were usually snacks and hot chocolate or other drinks for us. Some of the younger people earned enough to get them into summer camp free the next summer.

When funds were then sent to the Mountain View Conference, they would return half or some portion of the total back to our church to be used for our own Community Services such as helping someone who is stuck in Buckhannon for some reason to get lodging for the night. Sometimes people come to the church needing help and we would have funds that would allow us to help them.

When Sheri Lynn Sapp was a little girl she loved to go with her mom, Marcelene Sapp and Vonda Simons, Fred Seeley's mom and others when they went to Weston, Sutton, Burnsville and other towns. as well as the Buckhannon area. Sheri liked doing this when she was just a little girl and she has continued going with the caroling vehicle even if she is the only person doing the visitation to the homes. Each of us has a goal toward the total of funds needed. She had received over $500 toward our goal. We are so thankful for her dedication. If you would like to know more about Adventist Community Services and what they do, I found this site that may help you: Adventist Community Services | North American Division of Seventh-day Adventists (nadadventist.org)

On the Other Side of the Mountain

All about lettuce I remember a Christmas, maybe in the late seventies, when we had the front door open to let some cool air circulate around the table where we celebrated the holiday with our friends, Brian and Jeff. It was an unusually warm winter day. That particular Christmas day did not stick in our mind solely because of the surprising warmth, but while I tried to get the Christmas meal started, Greg came in and said that the sheep and the horse were missing. We found the place where they had escaped.

A tree had fallen on the fence, providing a perfect bridge for their escapade. They had followed a path that had been frequented by former neighbors who used it for a faster and more direct route to the county road. After about a half an hour we found the animals grazing on an abandoned field. We had come prepared with a bucket of grain that we wiggled in front of them and sure enough the smell of grain and the familiar sight of the bucket caught their attention and they followed us home. We had to fix the fence. Christmas dinner was delayed.

Catalogs have been arriving at the mailbox. I usually encourage people to favor local businesses if at all possible, but when it comes to seeds, I prefer the choices offered by various seed catalogs. I can read about the expectations for a certain crop, their resistance to certain diseases, their growing recommendations, days to maturity and sometimes remarks about flavor and hardness. The drawbacks of catalog shopping is that types and variations are innumerable, so I have to peruse many catalogs. Another downside is the cost of shipping, which can amount to quite a bit when one orders from different places. We used to order as a group and share the extra expense, but there are too few people today to make a communal order.

Here are some varieties that we like in the lettuce category. From Johnny's: Muir (green) and Magenta (purple fringes) for summer lettuce.

They can take the heat well, are slow to bolt with good disease resistance. They stay crisp and sweet all summer. Even-though they are not considered as a head lettuce, they form very full, nice compact bunches, similar to a head lettuce. They have to be thinned out at 5" to 6" intervals.

I still seed some Romaine, but I find the two types mentioned before, easier to grow and giving a better return. For head lettuce, which will do best transplanted from flats into the garden in April, I had consistent results with Nancy (green) and Skyphos (red).

They are tender and sweet, and both take about 50 days to maturity. They make wonderful salads, so crisp they make a crunchy sound when eaten.

For winter fare, I recommend Benefine and Curlesi (both jagged and curly leaves) for endive and Natacha (broad, smooth leaves) for escarole.

Virtus forms a twisted 10" tall cone that holds well during the season.

It is mildly bitter without being unpleasant. These are the lettuce varieties from Johnny's. Should you consult their website or catalog, the offers on lettuces is overwhelming. Sometimes of course, I will add on other vegetables. I would highly recommend for you to get a catalog from Johnny's, even if you don't intend to buy anything from them. They offer good advice on planting, insect control, useful garden gadgets, you can even ask for help if you have a garden problem. The prices of seeds might be somewhat higher than other companies, but they are employee owned and offer healthcare.

As many of you know my favorite .loose leaf lettuce is Green Ice.

Not that it tastes any better than all the other ones mentioned, but I think it is the most reliable and adaptable lettuce. As a loose leaf variety, it has fairly large loose heads. Days to maturity is 45 days after emergence. It can be started as early as end of March, with some row cover like Remy to increase the temperature of the still cold soil and putting a bow over the seedbed, covering it with plastic. This contraption works like a cold frame. Of course seeding can start in February in a hoop house. Green Ice is available by Park Seed, Territorial, Burpee's, Harris and Gurney's

You wonder why we use so many different varieties of lettuce just for the two of us. We eat fresh lettuce every day. I start in February in the hoop house with Green Ice and at the same time I seed head lettuce inside in flats that will be ready to be transplanted outside middle of April. I also seed Green Ice again outside around middle of March, beginning of April.

This later seeding will be ready when the first crop in the hoop house is nearing its end of production. In May Muir, Magenta, some Green Ice and Romaine are direct seeded outside. The rows are all about 4' or 5' feet long, and I try to pace the seeding on a 5 to 6-week interval, so a constant harvest is assured. The goats and chickens love the lettuce we have to pull, when the next crop is ready.

The winter lettuces are seeded in the hoop house around middle of August. They will mature around Thanksgiving when the outside greens are in decline. The cold weather keeps the growth in check and we have winter lettuce till March when the first Green Ice is ready.

I don't remember the year of another Christmas where it was so cold that we had to take the two newly born baby goats down in the living room, near the wood-stove to let them dry out and to prevent the wet ears from freezing.

I don't remember the guests on this particular Christmas, but they must have been pretty tolerant of sharing the space with animals, of course their cuteness would have won over any skeptic.

A chance meeting

By Joseph J Mazzella

I had a chance meeting the other day. I was walking into a local convenience store when a voice called out to me. It was my friend, Rod. We had first met in kindergarten and he had been one of my best friends all through grade school, high school, and into college. Fun loving and free spirited, Rod had gotten me into trouble more than once growing up. He had also been a fountain of laughter and good cheer and my childhood had been so much better with him in it. He moved away to find work and it had been a t least 30 years since I last saw him. Now we were talking, trying to catch up 3 decades in a few minutes. I also noticed something strange about him. He looked in a word: OLD.

Now truth be told he looked much better than me. He was thinner and fitter. He had fewer wrinkles. His hair was thicker Funny how certain things bring back memories.

We don't have turkey coma like at Thanksgiving but we have been getting sleepy. We sure did not have turkey again for Christmas. We had a ham, mashed potatoes, green beans, macaroni and cheese, hot rolls and pears. I baked a couple pumpkin pies, apple pie and chocolate chip cookie bars. I said, " Hide the bathroom scales !" It is easier to put the weight on than to get it off.

We think coyotes have been pestering our dog, Rascal, at night. He won't go in by the fire. We try and take good care of him but he takes off running if he thinks Mr. R. is coming out to put him inside.

Governor Justice Allocates Funding for Nursing Program at Glenville State College

West Virginia Governor Jim Justice has announced funding for nursing programs at three schools in the state, including Glenville State College.

"I commend Governor Justice on his foresight for helping tackle this nursing shortage. We see this as a preemptive strike of sorts, recognizing the needs of the present and the future here in West Virginia and throughout the country," said Glenville State College President, Dr. Mark A. Manchin.

At a press conference on Tuesday, Governor Justice said that $48 million dollars from federal CARES Act money will be given to the West Virginia Higher Education Policy Commission to distribute between Glenville State College, Concord University, and Bridge Valley Community and Technical College for the purpose of starting nursing programs at the institutions, as well as expanding Bridge Valley's current nursing program.

The Governor was joined for the announcement by Dr. Cynthia Persily of the West Virginia Higher Education Policy Commission, Glenville State College President Dr. Mark A. Manchin, Concord University President Kendra Boggess, and Bridge Valley Community and Technical College President Casey Sacks.

"No words can adequately describe how I feel about this announcement," Manchin said. "We're excited about this opportunity, and I want to thank Governor Justice for his leadership in taking the initiative to tackle this shortage of nurses. We see now, especially with COVID, that nurses are needed here in West Virginia and throughout the nation. This initiative will allow us to train more nurses for the future right where we need them the most - in rural areas

He got more hay put in his box and he seems to be happy with that, but he tears off that back porch barking and growling after something every night. Sometimes it is deer and other times we think it is coyotes. You can tell by the bark. He would rather stay outside and be watchdog than to be warm. We have never had a dog act like he does. And, he would rather eat deer droppings than dog food. If he barks and scares them all off, he won't have much to eat, though.

Well, I will wrap this up for now. I hope everyone had a nice Christmas. We did and now I will say, Happy New Year and God bless ! Be safe and stay well.

of our state. So, with this endeavor, I believe that it will make a real difference in the clinics and small hospitals of the Mountain State and beyond."

Glenville State College has partnered with Marshall University to offer students a program leading to a Bachelor of Science in Nursing. The agreement will see prospective students enroll at Glenville State and complete general education courses during their first year. Once students are admitted to the BSN program, they will receive instruction from Marshall faculty members on Glenville State's campus. The program, which is pending WV Board of Nursing approval, is designed for professional nurse generalists to work with individuals, families, groups, and communities in a variety of healthcare settings as they work toward obtaining RN licensure. Pre-nursing enrollment begins in the fall of 2022 at Glenville State.

"This type of four-year nursing program has never existed in the central part of West Virginia where Glenville State is located, and we are looking forward to expanding our footprint and expanding access to this in-demand program. This will help fill a real need and, again, I thank Governor Justice for helping us to train these much-needed nurses," Manchin added.

As West Virginia faces nursing shortages and the number of COVID related hospitalizations reaches an all-time high, the governor hopes these new programs, in addition to incentives including scholarship programs for West Virginia nursing students, will help support current hospital staffs by flooding West Virginia with quality nurses.

Visit www.glenville.edu/nursing for more information about the nursing program at GSC.

Gelnhausen Germany 1966 A chance meeting and had a lot less gray than mine. But while I get to see my own daily deterioration in the mirror each morning my picture of Rod was stuck 30 years in the past. We said goodbye and wished each other well and I went home feeling both you and old at the same time. Part of me wondered where the last 30 years had gone and part of me remembered those joyous childhood memories like they were yesterday. It was very confusing.

Have you ever felt like you were just passing through this life? Have you ever felt so old in your body but so young in your soul? If you have then you can understand what I was feeling then. Part of me was a 55 year old man with grown children and part of me was a 5 year old boy laughing with my friend and staying awake during nap time at Kindergarten.

I think that chance meeting with Rod wasn't quite so chance, after all. It was another little reminder from God to cherish each moment this life gives you and to love and laugh each and every day. Life goes by so fast here. You blink and 30 years have gone by. Still, I know there will be a time when we can spend eternity catching up with our family and friends. It will be in a place where no one grows old and the love, laughter, and light last forever. Until then I will do my best to stay young inside, to cherish each day, and to share my love with everyone. May you do the same.

By Larry Knight
This picture was a day to celebrate. We have been knee deep in the mud for more than a couple of months on the Birnbach job.

The rain came at least once a day just to make more mud. These were hot humid days and we seemed to be getting nowhere fast. We were building a small compound.

Once the rain stopped falling then the mud started to dry up. By about September we were starting to get some momentum and get things done.

The job was about 6 months behind schedule and completion date was coming at us fast. When we did get a break it only lasted a day or two.

The picture shows two Champaign bottles I won the night before shooting a BB gun at a local carnival. That was a fun fun night. The guy operating the booth asked me if I was a cowboy from Texas the way I shot that BB gun pretty well.

The fact was I got a good many of the prizes the guy had on hand to win. Poor guy the next night the guys' booth was not open.

I had better introduce you to the picture. The guy on the right is me Larry Knight, the other guy is Roark, a guy that we traveled from basic training through our tour of duty to the day we came back to the good ole USA and discharged.

As you can see in the picture he is a PFC that transfers to private first class we usually called him Cheeseburger because he would go to the snack shop someone would ask 'What for you private' all a cheeseburger and fries good enough for me. Cheeseburger is a great guy and I call him every now and then. At home to the folks that know him, he answers to Fuzz.

So if you are ever in Florida you might accidentally bump into Fuzz. Cheeseburger is one of a few guys that I served in the military that I can set down and call on the phone and have an enjoyable conversation. A subject to talk about is not hard to come up with.

Over the Christmas holidays, I gave Cheeseburger a call. Nothing has changed since I last called him.

He is still the same character he was over 50 years ago. I mentioned this to him, I say Cheeseburger do you know that it has been over 50 years.

A buddy, a picture, and memories is about all that is left. I'm wishing everyone a Happy and Safe New Healthy Year this 2022.

(Tariff Rule 44) PUBLIC NOTICE OF CHANGE IN CHARGES BY MUNICIPALITIES

NOTICE is hereby given that the Town of Burnsville, a public sewer utility, has adopted, by ordinance on December 13, 2021, a tariff containing increased rates, tolls and charges for furnishing sewer collection and disposal service to sewer customers in and around Burnsville in the County of Braxton, West Virginia. Braxton County Middle School Knights Sports

By Shirley Shuman

Stevie Boggs, the Knights' leading scorer.

Aiden Crockett with the ball.

Carter Lewis in action under the hoop.

BCMS boys defeat arch rival Clay

Three players scored in double figures, with two of them getting double-doubles in the Knights' recent 57-34 defeat of Clay.

Braxton coach Randall Brown pointed out that "as usual any game with Clay is going to be physical" and added, "Clay matched us very well size wise."

Part of Clay's game strategy was triple-teaming Stevie Boggs, the Knights' leading scorer. Boggs still managed 20 points and 13 rebounds. Another Braxton player in double figures, Brady Toler also had a double-double with 10 points and 10 rebounds, and Owen Lowther added 11 points and pulled down eight rebounds. All of this showed that, with Boggs being triple-teamed, "other boys stepped up and really played well on the offensive side of the ball."

The coach said that his players "truly played their best game of the season, and we were able to wear Clay down with our full-court press.

We pride ourselves on our ability to play defense, and that is what I believe won the game for us." Brown went on to say, "Every player really stepped up for this game and did exactly as they were taught."

One interesting aspect of the Braxton-Clay game was the progression of the Knights' field goal shooting percentage. In the first quarter, Braxton shot 37 percent from the floor. That improved to 43 percent in the second, went up to 56 percent in the third, and to 70 percent in the fourth.

Looking forward to the rest of the season, Coach Brown noted, "We are now getting into some teams that will give us more competition, but I am confident if we play our game, we will be difficult to contend with."

Knight's individual statistics for the Braxton-Clay game:

Stevie Boggs.....	20 points,	13 rebounds
Brady Toler.....	10 points,	10 rebounds
Owen Lowther.....	11 points,	8 rebounds

Knights' wrestlers go 2-1 in quad held on home territory

In a wrestling event sponsored by the BCMS last Wednesday, Hurricane, Midland Trail, Calhoun, Gilmer and Braxton competed. Braxton finished at 2-1.

Knights' wrestlers Jackson Wyne, Hunter Short, Bradyn Morris, Paxton Smith, Eliah Moore, and Joel Sigman were undefeated during the competition.

In the first round, Braxton defeated Calhoun 36-30. Knights' coach Tyler Morlan called this "a great win for us," and explained, "We had lost to them earlier in the year, and we were able to get a couple wins in matches that we lost and pins in matches that were [only] minor decisions last time."

Round two was also a good round for the Knights. In that round, Braxton out-wrestled Midland Trail 33-24. Coach Morlan described the match. "This was a hard-fought round for our boys, and a lot of matches ran into the third round when we were able to come out on top."

Hurricane Midland outscored Braxton 54-30 in the third match. "This was a really good team and was a good test for our boys," the Braxton coach noted. "With only nine varsity weight classes filled, we knew it would be had to win, but a lot of our boys stepped up and got pins."

As the holiday approached, we remind you that pets are a lifetime commitment, and not just a present for under the tree on Christmas morning. Just One Generation recommends that new pets NOT be introduced to a household on or at Christmas morning, but rather several weeks before or after the event. This gives all the best chance for the pet to adapt to its new environment. Just One Generation cat rescue was formed in 2013 to help address the severe feline overpopulation problem in our area. All of our adoptable cats and kittens are looking for indoor homes, and are litter box trained, social, have been vaccinated, dewormed, and received topical flea protection. Spay/neuter/rabies is included with our modest adoption fee of $35, and older kittens and cats may already be done at the time of placement. This week we feature another of our mother cats that hold a special place in our hearts, as well as two recently received 8 week old sisters. More adoptable animals can be viewed on petfinder.com by entering a search for CATS at location 26623, or by LIKING our Facebook page. Additional information can be obtained by calling Sally Stewart at 304-364-4136.
